

My journey with music and brass began only 6 years ago (as I was pulled off the benches where the parents sat during band rehearsal by the main conductor at Bilton training band!).

I had never read music before, never mind played anything! But I had a good patient teacher who introduced me to the baritone, and many months later I passed my first music exam! From there I joined a more senior band at Bilton, then a further local band until I came across Dunchurch Band, just over a year ago, and have been enjoying myself ever since
